Reported Held Without Trial In Palestine

Some weeks ago, the Jewish Chronicle, of London, England, published a report that a number of Palestinian Jewish members of the British Army, R.A.F. and Navy had been arrested immediately on their discharge from the services, by arrangement with the Palestine civil authorities, and were being detained administratively without formal trial by the Palestine Government on charges which were not made public.

One was ex-Sergeant Efraim Moscovitz, R.A.F., senior member of a firm of agents' representatives in Tel-Aviv, who did a lot to promote the sale of British-made products on the Palestinian market. Efraim Moscovitz joined the R.A.F. in 1940 as soon as Palestinians were allowed to enlist in the British Forces; became an acting corporal a month later, and eventually a sergeant. He served most of the time in Egypt and the Western Desert.

Last September he applied for a transfer to Palestine so that he could keep an eye on his business and be available for important decisions to be taken on its post-war scope. The application was refused. In March this year he was suddenly transferred to Palestine. In April he was told that he was being transferred to Ramleh, an R.A.F. depot on the Jerusalem-Tel-Aviv highway, for which he would leave immediately with an officer. On arriving there, he was taken to the Commandant's office and made to sign the necessary discharge documents, completed and ready for his signature.

Although amazed at the speed of his discharge, he signed, and, on leaving, asked the adjutant for means of conveyance to Jerusalem to join his wife. He was escorted [illegible]

[illegible] was escorted to the R.A.F. camp gates by a group of R.A.F. officers and men, strangers to him, and there he found a party of Palestine police apparently waiting for him by prearrangement. He was handcuffed, taken to Ramleh civil prison overnight, and eventually placed in the Latrun detention camp. Since then he has been detained at Latrun, with the exception of a short period when he was brought to Jerusalem for interrogation. His wife, who insists that he was never in any political party or organization, was told by C.I.D. officers that Moscovitz was detained because of the suspicion that he was connected with terrorists in Egypt.

To add point to this report of a man who has given five years of his life with the British colours, it

Says Anti-Semitism In France Not Serious

Max Gottschalk, head of the overseas department of the American Jewish Committee, told the press in Paris after a four-week investigation that in France at least the traces of anti-Semitism left by Nazi occupation were not so serious as he had been led to believe by some newspaper reports.

He said French Jewish organizations had reported ten to twenty cases of angry demonstrations in Paris when Gentiles had to return apartments and business premises to refugee Jews, but that "anti-Semitism has no general or serious character in this country."

According to figures gathered for Dr. Gottschalk by French Jewish organizations, nearly all of 3,000 applications for emigration from France made by Jews since the liberation were presented by foreign-born Jews who had entered the country since 1933. French-born Jews made only 140 applications.

In the opinion of other Jewish sources more manifestations of anti-Semitism are to be expected in the next few months when restitution of several thousand Jewish apartments and business premises is carried out—restitution that has been delayed until after the elections. Many of the apartments involved were assigned to police officers during the Vichy regime.

Czechs Fair To Jews, They Say

Czechoslovakia is seeking to practice toleration, according to a message received by the Czechoslovak Embassy in Washington, [illegible]

The message was in response to an inquiry from the Embassy, prompted by a published report of anti-Semitism, especially in Czechoslovakia.

In its message the Foreign Office said:

"1. All racial laws discriminating against Czechoslovak citizens have been abolished.

"2. Repatriated Jews receive, besides normal rations, additional food allotments.

"3. We are aware of a very few cases of discrimination in Slovakia but they were promptly remedied.

"4. We watch carefully so that UNRRA supplies will be distributed justly and methods of distribution are strictly controlled.

"5. The UNRRA in Prague has been asked to send a representative to Slovakia to ascertain the facts."

700 RABBIS VOICE PLEDGE IN UNISON

The Rabbinate of New York and their congregations, orthodox, conservative and reform, observed a part of a national day of prayer and intercession proclaimed by the Synagogue Council of America, in behalf of Jewish victims of nazism.

The observance reached a climax with an impressive religious convocation of more than 700 rabbis of Greater New York, in the Spanish-Portuguese Synagogue, at Central Park West and Seventieth Street. The convocation was called by the New York Board and the Brooklyn Board of Jewish Ministers.

Rabbi David de Sola Pool of the Spanish-Portuguese Synagogue delivered the invocation. The Rev. Maurice Ganchoff of Congregation Shaare Zedek, Broadway at Ninety-third Street, chanted the psalms and the traditional prayers of mourning and intercession. The highlight of the meeting was the rising of the rabbinical audience who repeated the oath in Psalm 137: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning, if I do not remember thee let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

To Ask Nation's Aid For Palestine Entry

A new approach to the thorny international problem of Palestine was proposed in the U.S. Congress. A joint resolution, introduced with bi-partisan sponsorship in both the House and Senate, seeks to [illegible] while side-stepping the controversial issue of Jewish sovereignty. It proposes:

1. Establishment of a United Nations commission to aid "immediate transfer" to Palestine of those Axis-persecuted European Jews who want to go there "and to insure peaceful and orderly processes in securing these ends";

2. Free entry "at the earliest possible moment" of all other Jews who want to settle in Palestine, with rights to colonize";

3. As a long-range program, that Palestine "ultimately be established as a free and independent democratic state with full citizenship rights for its inhabitants without discrimination based on racial or religious factors."

Its sponsors are Senators Charles W. Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, and Francis J. Myers, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, and Representatives Bertrand W.

Wise In Error, He Tells Consul

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, of New York, was disclosed to have sent a letter to Karel Hudec, Czechoslovak consul general in New York, expressing his profound regret over the inclusion in a recent advertisement of a statement that 7,000 repatriated Jews in Czechoslovakia had committed suicide.

"I accept unreservedly your judgment that this story is not true," Dr. Wise wrote to Mr. Hudec, "and I am glad and grateful for many reasons to be able to do so."

The advertisement in question was in the form of an open letter to Prime Minister Clement Attlee from Dr. Wise and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, co-chairman of the American Zionist Emergency Council, insisting that Britain open Palestine to the Jews.

Dr. Wise explained that the paragraph to which Mr. Hudec took exception was based on a dispatch sent from Prague on Sept. 18 by a news agency.

"As you know," Dr. Wise wrote to Mr. Hudec, "I have for many years given whole-hearted support to the cause of a free and democratic Czechoslovakia and was among the first of those who stood behind the late President Masaryk in his heroic and historic fight for the independence of your country. I am glad to be able to take this opportunity of reaffirming my faith in the great democratic tradition of your country, of which President Benes has been so distinguished and consistent an exponent."

Transjordan Arab Legion Patrols In Palestine

The Transjordan Arab Legion, a body of men raised entirely in the Emir Abdullah's territory and officered solely by Arabs, is in Palestine, where apparently a substantial number of its units are now stationed, says the London Jewish Chronicle. Their obvious presence there, coupled with their activities, gives much food for reflection on the part of wide circles in the Yishuv, more especially in view of some aspects of their duties.

The Officer Administering the Government, J. V. W. Shaw, inspected the Arab Legion Tactical School at Latrun (on the Jerusalem-Tel-Aviv highway), Arab Legion companies at Sarafand, and an Arab League detachment at Lydda, on Saturday afternoon, September 1, according to an official Government House bulletin. He was accompanied by the commanding officer of the units, Lt.-Col. Ahmed Suki Bey.

Here are some reports culled from the local press, Hebrew and Arabic, of some of the fine work done by the Arab Legion, a purely Transjordanian formation, now garrisoned in Palestine:

During the early hours of August 7, near El Bassa village (in Northern Palestine), an Arab Legion patrol arrested six "illegal" immigrants who claimed to have come from Aleppo. They were detained. (Reported in the daily police bulletin.) Subsequent inquiry showed that these "illegal" immigrants were Jews.

A patrol of the Transjordan Frontier Force exchanged shots near the frontier with 50 armed Jews trying to cross into Palestine. (Arab News Agency report.) Subsequent inquiry showed that they were actually a party of Jewish [illegible] ment-issue rifles, who were under the impression that they were being ambushed. They had been on an excursion to Jewish settlements along the frontier. The hikers, all of them students of the Haifa Hebrew Technical Institute, were detained by the patrol, although they produced written authority for their journey, and were released only when a British constable was brought from a near-by post. The Arab legionaires and their officer knew no English, the hikers no Arabic. The party, which included several young women, stated that the soldiers kept their rifles pointed at them and kept on shouting rudely.

Mrs. Brandeis Was Noted Liberal

Mrs. Alice Goldmark Brandeis, widow of Associate Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court, died of a heart attack in her home, 2205 California Street, N.W., Washington. Her age was 78.

Mrs. Brandeis and her husband, during the many years they lived in Washington, took little interest in formal society, but often entertained groups of younger people of liberal views at gatherings in their home, at which discussions of current events took place. Although liberal in their thinking, the Brandeises were conservative in their mode of living and were among the last of Washington's official families to abandon the horse and carriage for the automobile.

Mrs. Brandeis emerged from her usually quiet life last year to protest the use of her name on the list of sponsors of the American League for a Free Palestine and the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation. Her husband a noted Zionist, was the first Jew to be appointed to the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Brandeis was married to the future Justice in 1891 when he was practising law in Boston. They came to Washington in 1916 when he was appointed to the Supreme Court by President Wilson. Justice Brandeis died in 1941, several years after his retirement from the bench.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Rauschenbush of Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Susan B. [illegible]ert of New York; three sisters, Misses Pauline and Josephine Goldmark, of Hartsdale, N.Y., and Mrs. Felix Adler, of New York, and a brother, James Goldmark, of Greenwich, Conn.

Situation In Palestine Continues Tense

The Palestine underground Jewish radio station announced that two Jewish settlements would not pay fines the Palestine government has said it would levy against them unless they supply the names of persons responsible for freeing illegal Jewish immigrants.

The government had said earlier that residents of the Yagur and Bet Oren settlements near Haifa would be fined collectively unless they disclosed the names of those who forced the release of nine Jewish immigrants from the police Oct. 10. Thus far the names have not been revealed, and the escapees were reported still at large.

Meanwhile, a Damascus dispatch said Syria and Lebanon had decided to act jointly with other Arab states to combat "Zionist infiltration." The dispatch said the announcement was contained in a communique issued by the presidents, premiers and foreign ministers of the two countries.

In Cairo, Emiel Bey el Kori, secretary of the Arab party in Palestine, said Jewish immigration into Palestine would be opposed "when the time comes", but he indicated there would be no action prior to the Arab League meeting in Cairo on Oct. 29.

General strikes in Damascus and Beirut, recorded sympathy for the Arabs in Palestine in the stand against Zionist demands for the British to end their White Paper policy and permit unrestricted Jewish immigration.

Following prayers in the Ommayade Mosque at Damascus an ulema (Moslem learned man or religious speaker) addressed the congregation on "perils" attendant upon the "Judaization" of Palestine and submitted the text of a message to be sent to the leaders of the Arab States soliciting their [illegible] At [illegible] world-powers demonstrated in similar fashion and other Arab throngs are reported to have marched to the Lebanon Parliament with cries of "Down with Zionism!"

Throughout Lebanon and Syria there is evidence of considerable indignation against a Lebanon Deputy, Rafaat Kazoun Bey, who was recently arrested for carrying a quantity of arms and is reported, according to the Levantine press, of connection with Zionist organizations.

The Lebanese chiefs of state, said a report from Damascus, have met their Syrian opposite numbers in the Syrian village of Babadani, near Damascus, and decided upon common measures against Jewish illegal immigration into Palestine across the Syrian and Lebanon frontiers. The Lebanese Cabinet, it is also reported, will soon take economic and political steps against the Jews in Palestine.

Early this month Lebanese authorities refused to grant transit visas to 105 Jewish refugees from Bulgaria. Consequently a vessel has been chartered to bring them from a Turkish port to Haifa. Also so far as is known there has been no rescinding of a previous order to the Syrian Army and gendarmerie to stop Jews trying to cross the border into Palestine.

Jewish manifestations constituted articulate warning that some Zionist elements would resort to force if Jewish immigration were prevented. Now Arab demonstrations, although less well disciplined, warn of violence to come from their side if the British Government acts in the Zionists' favor.

According to Arab sources the world at large possesses insufficient knowledge of their position in the issue of Palestine and is not enough aware of the potentialities of the Arab Federation in causing trouble both to America and Britain, notably in the matter of Middle East oil concessions if Washington and London make decisions against the Arabs.

These Arabs assert that the foreign press is regularly served by local correspondents in Palestine who in every case are Jewish. Hence, they assert, these correspondents are obliged to put forth the viewpoint of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

To prevent the coming into existence of a Jewish state in Palestine the Arabs will fight "until we are exterminated." Dr. [illegible] Jerusalem, told A. T. Steuart of the New York Times. He predicted, in event the British gave up the White Paper policy, outbreaks such as took place in the early Nineteen Thirties only far more bitter. He said all Arabs were looking for protection to the Arab League.

Auni Bey Abdul Hadi, Arab Nationalist, said that unless the British curbed the outbreaks in Palestine "trouble between the Arabs and Jews—and civil war—is unavoidable." In reply to President Truman's reported suggestion

• WOMEN'S AUXILIARY Juniors, Jewish General Hospital, heard Percy Jacobson, who is identified with Canadian Jewish Congress, discuss rehabilitation. Miss Sybil Witten is president.

• CANADIAN Jewish Congress: Arrangements with the Anti-Fascist Jewish Committee in Moscow to trace in Russia relatives of Canadian Jews were made through the World Jewish Congress, and a special information bureau registers Jews in Russia who have relatives in other lands, including Canada. The bureau, together with the Russian Red Cross, promises to reply to inquiries from the Canadian Jewish Congress. They are also collecting information on the German murder camps at Majdanek, Oswiecim, Dachau and other camps which were liberated by the Russians. Inquirers must give the names, age, birthplace, occupation, last address, citizenship of relatives sought. The Congress office will give attention to personal and written inquiries. A delegation representing the Congress will visit Polish Jews within a few weeks to investigate their position, with the view of increasing the relief program and to help locate relatives of Canadian Jews. This decision was taken at a meeting of the national executive in Montreal. Samuel Bronfman, national president, reported that the million and one-half dollars relief quota for this year is assured with Winnipeg and Montreal having already raised their share and with Toronto participation promised. It was resolved to convene a conference of Canadian landsmanshaften to consider implementing their program of relief to localities through the United Jewish Refugee and Relief Agencies, and a conference of the three hundred and fifty members of the National Dominion Council on November 25, and one on Jewish education within the next few weeks. Present were: Michael Garber, K.C.; Monroe Abbey, J. H. Fine, F. I. Spielman, S. J. Littner, Julius Rosenfeld, M. Dickstein, L. Zuker, M. Bailey, I. Riddell, Saul Hayes, H. M. CAN YOU HELP HERE?

An air letter addressed to "The Canadian Jewish Press; or any Branch of the Jewish Press, Toronto, Canada", has been received by the Review from Pte. A. Miller, 16028345; 140 COY. P.C., C.M.F., which says:

"I am a British soldier serving in Austria and during my stay in Graz, Austria, I contacted about seven hundred survivors, all Jewish, who were freed from the worst concentration camp in Poland. They had some ghastly statements to make and it seems that each one is alone as their families were wiped out. Among these is a young girl by the name of Syma Flutowicz who originates from Lida near Vilna in Poland.

"She lost all her family and is left alone in this world but she states that she has an uncle living in Toronto but does not know the full address. This young lady is anxious to locate her uncle as he may be able to help this unfortunate girl who has suffered from the Nazis. Something must be done to help her and as a fellow-Jew I am doing my share by writing to you and begging that if it is at all possible to locate the uncle through the Jewish press or through other channels, communication and correspondence could be made through me at the above address.

"I will also pay for any expense that may be needed and will want your early reply. The name of the relative in Canada is Leyzer Flutowicz."

THE KIND OF CANADA YOU WANT FOR YOU AND YOURS

Play your part in building it

Is the Peacetime Canada to be the kind of land you want . . . able to provide employment, plenty and happiness for all its citizens?

If so, no one should shirk his or her worthy part in making it so. Perhaps you have already lent to your country a son to fight . . . a daughter to serve in the forces. Or you've worked ceaselessly and without complaint . . . lent your savings to help bring Victory. If so—in any or all of these things—you have done your duty nobly.

But the demands and consequences of war do not end with the fighting. We must literally restore and build anew so as to have the Peacetime Canada we want. As loyal Canadians we must help our Country to shoulder great and necessary financial burdens. Otherwise, our hopes cannot come true.

To mention only one task before us—the return to civil life of our fighting forces. We must bring hundreds of thousands of them home—rehabilitate all our ex-service men and women—provide for our disabled and their dependents. It is costing huge sums of money, yet it is only one vital expenditure among countless others.

HOW CAN IT BE DONE?

To make all this possible we must be prepared, in addition to paying our taxes, to continue to lend our savings to Canada . . . all we can spare. We must buy Victory Bonds in this Ninth Victory Loan.

In this case our duty is also our self interest. Victory Bonds are the finest of all investments, guaranteed by all the resources of Canada. They pay good interest twice every year and can be turned into instant cash in case of emergency.

But bear in mind that the Ninth Victory Loan will be the last for a whole year. Previous Victory Loans have come every six months. Be sure to plan to invest the same rate of savings as in previous Loans . . . it will buy double this time.

For all you hope and long for . . . for yourself and your children . . . for Canada . . . buy Victory Bonds Now.

A Jewish Chaplain Appeals To You

The letter below speaks for itself. Canadians of all creeds are now engaged in a Dominion-wide clothing campaign in order to aid all war victims on the European and Asiatic continents. The appeal of Captain I. B. Ross has a personal summons calling upon us to do something special for the people of Holland who are in need not only of clothing but of essentials in food in order to maintain themselves during the coming cold, trying winter.

Let us do that which the Chaplain now asks of us and help him and the Canadian Chaplaincy office in Holland to give that personal humanitarian service so lovingly associated with those men of God who have been ministering to our fighting men and are now giving of themselves trying to help the suffering of the civilian population. We must answer this appeal by sending parcels directly to the Jewish Chaplain Centre, First Canadian Army Leave Centre, Amsterdam, Holland.

"Dear Dr. Stern: I trust you are well. As you probably know, the Jewish chaplains in Holland have a golden opportunity in providing relief to our Jewish brothers in Holland. We have been able to organize the sending of food parcels by individuals and individual groups to the people of Holland. Such parcels have been a great help in maintaining people who have returned from the horrors of concentration camps and hiding underground.

"We foresee a very severe winter for the people of this country and especially a great shortage of warm clothing. I'm appealing to you now, to ask and even demand of the people in Canada to send me parcels of warm clothing such as sweaters, scarves, woollen garments, etc., and food, such as tea, coffee, sugar, tinned meat and fish, cooking oil, vitamin-pills. These parcels will be distributed to the neediest cases and will go a long way toward maintaining life.

"Please bring this letter to the attention of every responsible group and organization in Canada. Will you please let me know the results as soon as possible? With all good wishes for the New Year."

Hebrew Union College Is 70 Years Old

The oldest rabbinical school on the North American continent is the Hebrew Union College founded in 1875, in Cincinnati, Ohio, by Rabbi Isaac Mayer Wise. During the months of October, November, December of this year, it is holding special celebrations in Cincinnati, New York, and Chicago to mark its seventieth anniversary.

This institution of learning holds that Judaism is a continuously progressive religious discipline, and that it must be kept constantly liberal and spiritually alert. Hence it has preached the philosophy for the past seventy years that Judaism can live and thrive in America providing it be open to every positive influence of modernism and keep pace with every step forward in scientific thinking, providing, too, that it engenders that type of religious consecration which will evoke the uncompromising loyalty of every Jew.

From its modest beginnings in 1875, the Hebrew Union College has grown steadily. Among its distinguished presidents of the faculty, following Isaac M. Wise, were such scholars as Moses Mielziner, Gotthard Deutsch, and Kaufman Kohler. Julian Morgenstern is now President of this historic institution. Its faculty today consists of one professor emeritus, thirteen active professors, and seven special instructors.

During the past seventy years the college has graduated four hundred and seventy-five Rabbis. Its library is one of the three largest Jewish libraries in the world and contains approximately 100,000 volumes and 2500 manuscripts. The college is housed in five stately buildings upon its own tract of land, consisting of approximately eighteen acres.

The College has already reared three generations of American Jewish leaders who have served with honour and distinction the communities of the United States, Cuba, Panama, England, Palestine, South Africa and Canada. They have fought for the ideals of Judaism in accordance with Judaism's prophetic tradition and have constituted a positive force for truth and social betterment among Jews and non-Jews in every community where they have been called to serve.

The 70th anniversary presents a great challenge to the College in this historic hour of crisis. The leadership and the alumni recognize this challenge; for they realize that the future of world Jewry next to Palestine rests now with American Jewry. Now, when Jewish scholarship in Europe is circumscribed and nearly crushed, the Hebrew Union College must prepare itself to give to fellow-Jews, wherever they be, the religious leadership which they must have to continue as a people and historic religious community. The College, with more determined purpose, now is girding its loins to serve Israel by fostering Jewish scholarship, communal leadership and religious idealism and by labouring for a revival of Jewish life in the present and in the tomorrow now dawning.

Canadian Jewry has very good reason to share in the Hebrew Union College 70th anniversary celebrations. Hebrew Union College Rabbis have brought dynamic leadership to Jewish life in the Dominion and have been courageous pioneers in the promotion of better understanding and religious fellowship between Jew and non-Jew.

On this historic anniversary the graduates of the H.U.C., wherever they minister, rededicate themselves to serve in the name of God for the blessing of Israel and of mankind. They are of the conviction that especially now is the world in dire need of Israel's message of universal righteousness upon which hinges the salvation of humanity. We salute our Alma Mater from across the border and pray for its continuous consecrated service to the cause of progressive Judaism and the evolutionary unfoldment of the universal religious spirit.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

This column has received a copy of the brief on Religious Instruction In The Public Schools Of Ontario which Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, of the Holy Blossom Synagogue in Toronto, submitted to the specially-appointed Royal Commission On Education on behalf of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Central Division, on September 19. The brief and Rabbi Feinberg's introductory address are very able documents and, as one who is irrevocably opposed to religious instruction in the public schools for every reason, this column could not do better than to repeat the arguments which they contain with regard to this crucial issue, the outcome of which depends upon enlightened public opinion.

Jews realize the vital importance of religious education and throughout Canada they maintain supplementary week-day schools in which instruction is given after public school hours at the expense of the parents and the Jewish community. Religion is the spiritual core of democracy, teaching the dignity of all human beings and the inalienability of the basic rights of every individual; and religious instruction must be free of influence by the State in the interests of keeping that State democratic. The principle of separation of church and State must be preserved, otherwise the majority can use State resources to advance its own view of religion, whereas all faiths professed by Canadian citizens should be on an equal footing. Under the present plan, the public schools cease, in effect, to be public and become denominational, instead.

Jews take the view that religious instruction does not lie within the scope of the State. It belongs to church and home to root the child in his own religious tradition, and it belongs to the school to level the children of every faith into an equal fraternity guided to live and labor together in harmony. Here is one place where all kinds come together and should be undivided by differences in religious belief. They should meet on common ground with the emphasis on the factors that unite them in the bond of Canadianism. To continue religious instruction in the public schools is to emphasize differences and to weaken that bond by depriving the schools of their unifying effect.

The fact that children may be excused from classroom during religious instruction upon written request prevents them from being instructed in a faith other than their own, true, but it calls attention to differences which are of the very sort to deepen intolerance. No one can claim for this method that it deepens good will. But any one can see how it would cause division and discord, even between Christian religious denominations of which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics lists at least fifty-seven in the Province of Ontario.

It is inevitable that the division caused by religious instruction in the public schools, where citizenship gets a grounding, will have the effect of establishing two grades of Canadians, one stamped superior because it subscribes to the majority faith and standardized creed and origin, and the other inferior because it is different and dissenting. To establish such a thing through the effect that religious instruction has in the public schools is to subscribe inadvertently to something that can not be confined to religious differences, and that is damage to the whole principle of equality by inclination toward the totalitarian method.

In his excellent introductory address Rabbi Feinberg touched just briefly, and rightly so, the nature of the document considered, on the fact that exemption from religious instruction does not prevent the psychological harm of segregation on the morale of the minority and the morals of the majority. Jews, of course, know something about the heartache and the feeling of insecurity that are involved where the Jewish child is concerned, and how exemption from class for a few during religious instruction for the majority causes pain of a sort of indelible lasting quality, to say nothing of circumstances that can lead out of segregation, such as fist fights, oppression by bullies, searing taunts, and the like.

But the majority would do well to ponder the far-reaching effect on their own children of being placed in a favored position over other children just because these other children differ in religious belief and just because their children are in the majority. What kind of superiority is it which through injustice hurts the lives of others, which is gained without any personal achievement, and which destroys in the long run the democratic underpinnings of Canada as a country? What an artificial and manipulated superiority does to those who establish such a situation for themselves is a subject which deserves widespread investigation and ventilation, particularly with regard to the early environment of children.

The result might be to show that it comes at a price too high to pay, that it would be better for the character of the majority as well as the happiness of the minority to utilize newer methods in education in order to implant in each a sense of responsibility for the fate of every other member of the democracy through such a positive technique as the Springfield Plan which breaks down barriers and unites young people in the desire for implementation of ideals through active cooperation.

Such a project would certainly exclude the use of the series, Teachers' Guide To Religious Education, with their prejudiced and unfriendly references to Jewish religion and Jewish history, examples from which are given in an appendix to the brief which the Canadian Jewish Congress presented to the Royal Commission On Education, and which was prepared by Rabbi H. A. Fischel, of St. Catharines. Louis Rosenberg, National Research Director of Congress, also worked with Rabbi Feinberg.

The effort of these men and the Congress in setting forth the Jewish position that it is not the function of the State to impart religious instruction is highly praiseworthy, and this column hopes with all its heart that it will bear fruit in the interests of the common good and the welfare of all the children concerned. f.f.c.

REPORTED HELD

is pertinent to cite his Statement of Service and Certificate of Discharge, says the Chronicle. Enlisting on July 12, 1940, he was discharged on April 6, 1945, because his "services were no longer required." He holds the Africa Star and clasp. Under trade qualifications, character, and general health, he was stated to be "a superior tradesman of good behaviour."

Those are the facts: his wife has been vainly trying since April to find out if there is any provable ground of complaint against him and, if this is the case, to insist that he be tried by the military or civil courts, instead of his being detained indefinitely on the ground that the investigations are not yet complete.

She addressed a petition to the High Commissioner, Field-Marshal Viscount Gort, on June 1, and was subsequently informed by the Acting Chief Secretary that the representations had been referred to a "Committee appointed in order periodically to review the cases of persons detained under Emergency Regulations 15B and to make recommendations to the competent authority."

Mrs. Moscovitz protested against this course in a letter to the Acting Chief Secretary, stating that it was just because she was not satisfied with the Committee's procedure that she took the liberty of addressing the High Commissioner personally, in view of the fact that every Palestinian citizen — and the more so the wife of an ex-soldier who served in H.M. Forces for five years—was entitled to submit petitions directly to His Excellency.

SITUATION

that 100,000 Jews be permitted to enter Palestine, he said:

"Not only a hundred thousand but not a single one."

Auni Bey, who as leader of the Independent Nationalistic party was exiled from Palestine to Egypt but permitted to return in 1939, attacked Zionism as "cruel because the establishment of a Jewish state would give the Arabs no alternative but to fight against it."

He said Zionism was "unjust because it is against the Arab right to liberty and independence" and "impracticable as everyone knows who has seen the poor conditions of most parts of Palestine and its southern desert."

Crowds of Arabs shouting "the curse of God upon the Zionists," marched through Damascus carrying banners proclaiming "To the help of Palestine—we are ready to die that Palestine may live."

The underground radio station, believed to be a mobile unit, broadcast the announcement:

"Listen to the voice of Israel! This is not a terrorist station. This is the station of Hebrew resistance.

"Never again will Jews be deported from their homeland. Our patience is over. No power in the world shall break our determination.

"Neither the Arab League, the Trans-Jordan frontier force, the police, airborne division, police decree nor White Paper shall turn us into slaves."

Jews attacked the Athlith detention camp early one morning, and overpowered five guards. The raiders released 208 illegal Jewish immigrants from central Europe held there, but bound and gagged eleven other persons in the camp before fleeing to the south. One of the bound prisoners died of suffocation.

A British police patrol following the fleeing refugees toward Mount Carmel was attacked from ambush by rifles, grenades and sub-machine guns and one constable was killed.

Some time after dawn the police patrol intercepted about fifty of the fugitives near the Meshek Yajour colony and arrested nine, but the others escaped, a communique said.

The guard, said to be composed entirely of Jewish soldiers, watching over the Palestine training depot at Rehoboth was overpowered by a large number of Jews after which weapons and ammunition stored in the establishment were loaded on trucks, which also had been stolen, and carried off to an unknown destination.

A communique issued at British Army headquarters that released only the bare facts of the theft made the point of Rehoboth's being a training depot principally used for the training of the Jewish brigade.

Rehoboth is situated a few miles south of the Jerusalem airport at Lydda and throughout the war has been one of the British Army's largest and most active establishments. Weapons and ammunition stored there are believed to represent a wide assortment. None of the overpowered guard were reported to be casualties.

The Hebrew press, attributing its source to a French news agency, states that Abdul Rahhan Azzam Bey, secretary general of the Arab League, is now interested in a compromise solution, adding only that King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia favors radical measures, including the cancellation of oil concessions he had granted to American firms—that is, if the United States continued to support Zionism.

There is a noticeable tightening up of the usual security measures outside public buildings and there is more than the ordinary check on road traffic.

However, the conflict of the two apparently irreconcilable viewpoints is in the fire. It is suggested in specific fashion by a glance at the press, with the Arab newspapers as insistent that the British White Paper policy continue as the Jewish newspapers are insistent that it be discontinued. Both, in effect, warn the British Government of the consequences of "betrayal."

Bernard Joseph, acting chairman of the political department of the Jewish Agency, told The New York Times that if violence was used to prevent Jewish immigration into Palestine, Jewish forces, armed and well organized, would themselves resort to violence in retaliation.

"Jews will continue to come into the country by all means and will be helped to do so by Jews all over the world," he said. He refused to consider Jewish immigration an illegal practice and stated that for his own part he would not be satisfied with any solution of the Palestine problem short of the establishment of a Jewish State.

Referring to the incident at Kfar Giladi in the Nazareth area when a patrol of the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force, an Arab unit with British officers, fired on a group of Jewish settlers who, according to Jewish reports, had no guns but only sticks, Mr. Joseph said that the settlers had manifested great courage and forebearance. He cited their resistence to the organized effort to prevent immigration as an example of what was bound to recur if further efforts were made to obstruct the inflow of Jews from abroad.

Asked whether it was now admitted that the Jewish defense organization, at present generally conceded to be well armed, had acquired weapons from British stocks, as had been charged in many court proceedings against Jewish individuals and groups during the war, Mr. Joseph replied that most of the arms upon which the Jews counted to protect the settlements were acquired from the Arabs, but added that some may have come "indirectly from British army stores."

Mr. Joseph disavowed all connection with so-called "Stern Gang" and other terroristic Jewish organizations but made it clear that if the White Paper policy continued it would inevitably result in acts of violence. These were not to be considered of a terroristic nature, he added, but rather as a manifestation of a people determined to safeguard their rights.

Palestine Jews walked out in a five-hour general strike in protest against British limitations on immigration into the country.

The strike was carried out without disorders. The workers merely left their jobs, attended mass meetings throughout Palestine and held prayer sessions for the dead and molested.

Palestine was placed out of bounds to American troops by a sudden order from American headquarters of the Middle East theatre.

Immediately, the Yarden Hotel in Tel Aviv, an Army leave centre for three years, became a scene of bustling activity. Soldiers and baggage were loaded on Army trucks for movement to planes waiting at Lydda Airport, and telephone calls were made to round up all American troops visiting Jerusalem and Haifa.

TO ASK NATIONS'

Gearhart, Republican, of California, and Andrew L. Somers, Democrat, of New York.

As for the role of the U.S., the resolution's sponsors said the United States should:

1. "Use its good offices and take immediate appropriate measures" to have Palestine opened to free Jewish entry.

2. "Take the initiatory steps, in conjunction with other interested United Nations," in setting up the international commission to transfer without delay to Palestine all homeless European Jews who wish to go there.

MRS. BRANDEIS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goldmark, the former Miss Alice G. Goldmark was a member of a distinguished family and an early champion of the rights of labor. After her marriage in New York on March 23, 1891, to Mr. Brandeis, she settled in Boston and with him fought for industrial reform.

While he was on the Faculty of Harvard Law School, she espoused liberal causes, was active in women's suffrage organizations and in the welfare of the underprivileged. Concerned with human rights, she opposed with equal fervor exploitation in any form. She was especially interested in the legal defense presented in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

In 1928 she became vice-chairman of the Progressive League for Alfred E. Smith, seeking votes for the Presidential nominee of those Progressives who had cast ballots in 1924 for Senator Robert F. LaFollette.

In 1929 she translated the "Recollections" of her noted uncle, Karl Goldmark, Viennese composer, whose work had been played in America and abroad for many years.

She devoted herself in recent years to improving conditions in the Children's Court in the District of Columbia and to the alleviation of juvenile delinquency. She maintained her interest in the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine and was a member of the Women's National Democratic Club.

Following the race riots in Detroit in 1943, she was among the signers of an appeal for racial amity, calling upon the President and the Government to prevent a repetition of such occurrences.

Two of her sisters, the Misses Pauline and Josephine Goldmark, were pioneers in the study of women in industry. The [illegible] author of "Fatigue and Efficiency", is said to have influenced Justice Brandeis' famous brief on the eight-hour day.
